25X1 9.	Comment. Amt 500 formerly was the telephone central of the German 20,(1	Army High Command. Location and description by source are correct. . The underground installation, during World War II, was kept free from subsoil water by a pumping system which had to work continually. The technical en e	equipment of the installation, which has been under water since 1945, is fairly definitely believed to be useless.
